her busband. Pietro, early this morning, and died a new hours later in St. Vincent's Hospital.

Romano escaped, but the police are confident they will soon have him in custody.

The murder took place right under the walls of Police Headquarters, in the blg tenement-house, 299 Mott street, which is next door to Headquarters.

After he had shot his wife Pietro left the house, and when he met a policeman, half a block away, he calmly bid him good morning and walked away.

At the same imment half a hundred people or more, who had heard the shot, were hastly leaving their beils to see who had been hurt.

Michael Mauro, who is an intimate friend of Pietro, says the man shot his wife because he was infatuated with a woman, with whom he desired to return to Italy, and his own wife was in the way.

Pietro is a street-sweeper. He and his wife lived in three small rooms on the third floor of the crowded Mott street tenement. He is twenty-nine years old and married this wife eight years ago. when she was only twelve years old.

The couple went to live in a tenement-The couple went to live in a tenement-house in Muiberry street. A year ago they moved into the Mott street house. Their life was a happy one until a few months ago. Then the people in the house saw that the two began to disagree. They couldn't understand it at all, but Michael Mauro says that it was caused by the other woman. Pletro's work kept him out at night, and his wife, who was of a nervous disposition, always had some one of her neighbors sleep in one of her rooms until her husband would return at 4 c'clock A. M. Last night, Nicholo Caperna, Pletro's ten-year-old nephew.

exchanged words. Mrs. Romano went through the rooms next to her own, climbed on the fire-excape to her apartments, unlocked the door and let Pietro in. As he entered she saw that he held a revolver in his hand, and suspecting his purpose uttered a loud scream and started to run into an adjoining room.

As she turned Pietro fired, and his wife fell to the floor.

At the sound of the shot the boy awoke, and saw Pietro standing over his wife, with the revolver still in his hand. Pietra told him to get out or he would kill him. The boy ushed down the stairs and out into the street. Pietro followed the boy out, turned the corner of the street and walked slowly towards. Dr. Parkhurst Has a Perfect Right The impersonation of a candidate at a civil-service examination is, under t present laws, it seems, not a criminal

Acting Postmaster Swift and Post Office Inspector Beaver were of the Office Inspector Beaver were of the opinion that it was, and were ready some three weeks ago to arrest Edward Mandel, a lawyer, of 549 broome street, and also a teacher in Grammar School 20, and Julius Mandel, a teacher in Grammar School 75, on charges of impersonating and conspiring to impersonate Louis Simon, formerly a letter-corrier at Postal Station A, at a civil-zervice examination.

tency several weeks ago, and soon afte Acting Postmaster Swift was informe Acting Postmaster Swift was informed that some one, not Simon, had impersonated him when he passed the civil-service examination. Simon is a brother-in-law of the Mandels. He blamed them for his dismissal, and made two affidavits, incriminating the Mandels, especially Edward Mendel, who, he swears, took the examination, when closely pressed by Inspector Beaver, Simon was appointed a carrier June 1, 1894.

Simon was appointed a carrier June 1, 1894.

The affidavits and other evidence were laid before United States District-Attorney Macfarlane for action. The case was considered for three weeks, and fot so far that a complaint for conspiracy under section 5.40 of the Revised United States Statutes was drawn up. A further investigation showed, so said Mr. Swift to-day, that the law did not provide for such an infringement of the civil-service laws, and consequently no action could be taken.

Acting Postmaster Swift said further that there was no recourse in law against the Mandels, though the case was completely proven against them. I may make in the discharge of my duty

"It is said that if disorderly houses are suppressed, their inmates will invade the tenements. Suppose they do? The matter is one of legislation. Mr. Byrnes and his folowers are here to execute the laws."

Dr. Parkhurst said Supt. Byrnes's report of Sept. T was the most remarkable document he ever read, and commenting on the statement of the report that there had been 69,000 exclasattend the recent insurance convention propositions.

Dr. Parkhurst said at his house:

"Of course I am aware how the Police Commissioners hamper and hinder the Superintendent, but still, Byrnes is the cal executive head of the Department, and a man cannot have been the executive head for two years without correcting the civils and abuses complained of.

It is an open secret among the deputy United States Marshals and bailiffs. that ten of them will be out of a position, Oct. 1. They say they know positively that ten new men have been appointed in their places, and that strong local political pulls took the old men out and put the new ones in.

The "ins" who expect to be "outs," are noe quite broken-hearted over the situation. They have not been paid for their work for the past six months, owing to the stand taken by the First Comptroller of the Treasury. He thinks that the deputies and builiffs are only entitled to $2 a day for each sitting of month, at this rate the pay would be merely nominal.

The appropriation for the pay of the deputies and bailiffs at the old rates has been signed by the President, but the Comptroller of the Treasury is the stumbling block in the way.

Congressman "Tim" Campbell has been almost a daily visitor to the United States Marshal's office, supposedly to press the claims of some of his constituents for a Federal position.

Chief Deputy United States Marshal Kennedy this morning acknowledged that a number of changes would be made in the list of deputies and bailiffs on Oct. 1, but he declined to give their number or names.
